ORA
ORTHOPEDICS

From the Director

Artist Dorothea Tanning stated in 2002 that “Art has always been the raft onto which we climb to save our sanity,” and as we move into the last quarter of what has certainly been a challenging and unprecedented year, we at the Figge are committed to doing our part to support our community and provide healing through the power of art.

We invite you to come join us in person at the museum. With our preventative health and safety measures in place, you will be able to relax and experience artwork firsthand, connect with others, and learn about different time periods, cultures, and perspectives.

This fall, we will open six exhibitions. Three will highlight work drawn from our permanent collection, including 19th century moonlit paintings by Ralph Blakelock; Haitian masterworks, many of which will be on view for the first time; and new contemporary acquisitions depicting American subject matter in the manner of American Scene painters of the 1920s-1940s. We are also proud to present three loan exhibitions featuring the pioneering seating furniture designed by graduates and professors of the University of Iowa; autobiographic and dramatized artwork of T.J. Dedeaux-Norris and their persona Tameka Jenean Norris; and art that celebrates and reflects upon cancer survival. Each of these exhibitions, with their impressive works of art and powerful stories, will underscore unique and shared human experiences, providing opportunities for engagement, dialogue, and connection.

We will also continue to bridge art and our community through our Virtual Museum where you can find innovative programs, online exhibitions and tours, art activities, mindfulness prompts, and much more. Over the next few months, we will be offering Family Days, including our popular Day of the Dead, live and recorded Big Picture Outreach, and art and cultural programs. We hope that these and other online experiences will help you to live well by igniting your imagination, inspiring creativity, and helping you to rebalance.

Stay in touch with the Figge and me on social media. Over the course of the next few months, join us and be a part of the conversation – share a favorite work of art, an activity that your family enjoyed, an idea that resonated, or ways that the Figge has impacted you, using the hashtag #Figgeconnects.

In the meantime, we look forward to seeing you at the museum and online at figgeartmuseum.org.

New American Scene: Recent Acquisitions to the Figge Collection

OCTOBER 10, 2020-MARCH 7, 2021 | GILDEHAUS GALLERY

The term “American Scene” describes the work of artists who gravitated towards naturalistic depictions of American subjects from the 1920s to the 1940s. Some of the most prominent artists in the Figge collection are associated with this movement, including Regionalists Grant Wood and Thomas Hart Benton, who depicted rural communities, and artists such as Edward Hopper who focused on city life. New American Scene will feature recent acquisitions by artists who examine this same subject matter through a contemporary lens, including works by Adolph Rosenblatt, Rose Frantzen, and Mark Messersmith.

The Fige Art Museum is home to one of the largest collections of Haitian art in the United States. In 1967, Dr. Walter E. Neiswanger's generous gift of Haitian paintings and sculptures established the collection, which has grown to include a dynamic range of artworks in a variety of mediums and styles. Haitian Masterworks features highlights and rarely exhibited works from the collection by Hector Hyppolite, Wilson Bigaud, Didier William, and Edouard Duval-Carrié, among others. Painting, beading, carving, and mixed media sculpture will be on display. The exhibition focuses on prevalent themes in Haitian art, including spirituality, the natural world, everyday life, and history.

T.J. Dedeaux-Norris Presents the Estate of Tameka Jenean Norris

OCTOBER 24, 2020–JANUARY 31, 2021 | THIRD FLOOR GALLERY

T.J. Dedeaux-Norris, American, Cross section of 7 exhibition artworks, images courtesy of the artist, © T.J. Dedeaux-Norris

What part of yourself must you hide or bury for another to survive? This question is at the core of T.J. Dedeaux-Norris Presents the Estate of Tameka Jenean Norris at the Figge Art Museum.

In their art practice, T.J. Dedeaux-Norris (pronouns they/them) adopts different personas, including Black academic artist Tameka Jenean Norris. The distinction between artist and persona is frequently blurred in the ensuing artworks which are simultaneously autobiographic and dramatized.

Dedeaux-Norris will use this exhibition to establish an artist's estate and retrospective for recently deceased persona Tameka Jenean Norris. Tameka Jenean Norris's entire body of work will be on view including fabric assemblage paintings, videos, music and works on paper. Several performances will accompany the exhibition celebrating the life and death of Tameka Jenean Norris. The resulting exhibition will explore the complex legacy of an artist's identity after their passing.

This exhibition will include explicit content.

Blakelock: By the Light of the Moon

NOVEMBER 21, 2020–MARCH 14, 2021 | LEWIS GALLERY

Forgeries, mental illness, intrigue, and rapid fame—the dramatic circumstances of Ralph Albert Blakelock’s life often overshadow the merits of his work. By the Light of the Moon will feature eight exceptional artworks by Blakelock from the museum collection. Born in 1847, his early paintings were highly detailed landscapes inspired by Hudson River School painters. After traveling to the American West and becoming familiar with Barbizon painters, Blakelock developed the atmospheric landscapes for which he is known. Drenched in darkness and silvery moonlight, his thickly painted landscapes have a distinctive otherworldly quality. This exhibition will explore Blakelock’s body of work, and how movements like Romanticism are reflected in his artistic practice.

COMING SOON: EXPERIENCE TWO CENTURIES OF GREAT AMERICAN ART

For America: 200 Years of Painting from the National Academy of Design

FEBRUARY 20–MAY 16, 2021 | THIRD AND FOURTH FLOORS

For America comprises over 90 paintings made between 1810 and 2010 by great American artists and drawn from the collections of the National Academy of Design in New York. From its founding in 1825, the National Academy, an honorary artists' society, school, and museum, has required that all elected members donate works to the Academy's collection. For America features representative works and portraits given to the Academy by some of the most recognizable names in American art. Through paintings by Winslow Homer, William Merritt Chase, Jaune Quick-to-See Smith, Charles White, and other historical and contemporary masters, it presents a unique history of American art through the lens of the Academy and explores the ways in which artists have represented themselves and their country.

DONOR SPOTLIGHT

My Museum: Rejuvenating Davenport with Art

Don and Connie Decker have been members of the Figge Art Museum since 2007. They enjoy the changing exhibitions and meeting with artists both regionally and from around the world. “One of my favorite memories was the grand opening of the Figge,” says Don. “Connie and I brought our daughter, Kelli, who is an artist from Pennsylvania, and she lit up when she saw the new building and couldn’t believe this beautiful museum was in her hometown.”

The Deckers enjoy bringing their family to the museum. Before COVID, the Decker family enjoyed a tour, led by docent Lois Nichols. Don explained how he and his family had an excellent tour and he is continuously impressed by the well run and classy experiences he has had at the Figge.

Don was involved with the Figge building project from the beginning as the founder of Rejuvenate Davenport. He served on the board with Brock Earnhardt who also served on the Davenport Museum of Art Commission. “Brock sparked our interest to acquire property that the Figge now sits on. We raised the money and bought three buildings, then demolished them, and donated the land to the Figge Art Museum. I am proud of how it turned out,” said Don.

Don and Connie believe supporting the museum is vital to help the museum present more exhibitions and grow programming to continue to meet the needs of the community. As with the building project in 2005, Don and Connie are leading the way to support the Figge with a gift of $150,000 toward the lighting of the building. “I look forward to the day when we raise the funds to light up the Figge building at night,” said Don. “Think of the amazing impact it will have on our downtown and its businesses.”

What a Celebration!

The Figge's 15th anniversary celebration was a huge success! A special thank you to all of the sponsors, presenters who shared their time and talents, attendees, and the 15th anniversary committee who organized 17 virtual events. The Figge was not only celebrating the 15th anniversary, but also the elimination of the $3 million building debt thanks to the dedicated support of donors and community partners including The Bechtel Trusts, John Deere Foundation, Regional Development Authority, Scott County Regional Authority, Vision Iowa, City of Davenport, and Quad City Bank & Trust. The anniversary celebration culminated with a big bang finale that included a blessing from the Native American Coalition of the Quad Cities, special messages from Sir David Chipperfield and Congressman Loeb sack, an online auction with original artworks and unique experiences, and the burning of the mortgage.

Check out the Figge's Virtual Museum to view all of the 15th anniversary events and finale videos.
